Nowhere in Africa. (2002). Color. 141 mins. CC R. (Subtitled: English). Video Released 2002. Directed by Caroline Link. Featuring Juliane Kohler, Merab Ninidze, Lea Kurka, Matthias Habich, Sidede Onyulo. Both epic and heartbreakingly intimate, Nowhere in Africa begins with a Jewish woman named Jettel Redlich fleeing Nazi Germany with her daughter Regina, to join her husband, Walter, on a farm in Kenya. At first, Jettel refuses to adjust to her new circumstances (she brought with her a set of china dishes and an evening gown), while Regina adapts readily to this new world, forming a strong bond with her father's cook, an African named Owuor. But this is only the beginning of a series of uprootings, and as the surface of their lives is torn away, Walter and Jettel find they have little in common, and must—under tumultuous circumstances—build their marriage anew. Award(s): Academy Award, Best Foreign Language Film, 2002. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $28.96; VHS.

Ocean's Twelve. (2004). Color. 125 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Steven Soderbergh. Featuring George Clooney, Matt Damon, Bernie Mac, Julia Roberts, Brad Pitt. After pulling off the heist of their lives, Danny Ocean and his pals unexpectedly find themselves back in harness in this sequel to 2001's blockbuster hit Ocean's Eleven. After robbing a cool $160 million from the Bellaggio Hotel Casino and winning back his former wife, Tess (Julia Roberts), from Bellagio owner Terry Benedict (Andy Garcia), Danny Ocean (George Clooney) is living quietly on the lam in Connecticut when he's unexpectedly approached by Benedict. It seems Benedict has tracked down Danny and the ten men who helped him pull off the seemingly impossible robbery, and Benedict offers them a proposal — if they can repay the $160 million in two weeks, he won't have them killed. As it turns out, both Danny and his best friend, Rusty Ryan (Brad Pitt), haven't been doing so well in terms of money management and could use some cash, so they set out to plan a robbery to recover the loot, with the same crew helping out — Linus Caldwell (Matt Damon), Frank Catton (Bernie Mac), Basher Tarr (Don Cheadle), Saul Bloom (Carl Reiner), Reuben Tishkoff (Elliott Gould), Livingston Dell (Eddie Jemison), Yen (Shaobo Qin), Virgil Malloy (Casey Affleck), and his brother Turk (Scott Caan). Danny and Rusty discover that an incredibly rare Fabergé egg is being displayed at a museum in Rome which would fetch the price they need, but they soon discover a notorious cat burglar, Francois Toulour (Vincent Cassel), is also after the egg, and it turns into a race to see who can claim it first. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $27.95; DVD.

Only the Strong Survive. (2002). Color. 101 mins. PG13. Video Released 2002. Directed by Chris Hegedus. Featuring Isaac Hayes, Jerry Butler, Mary Wilson, Wilson Pickett. Roger Friedman is an entertainment journalist and music fan with a particular love for R&B and soul music from the mid-'50s to the pre-disco era of the early '70s. Owing in part to segregated booking policies and simple lack of proper archiving, Friedman discovered there is little or no surviving film footage or videotape of many of the greatest artists of the era performing on-stage. However, a large number of the performers in question were still active and performing on a regular basis, and with the help of documentary filmmakers Chris Hegedus and D.A. Pennebaker, Friedman set out to capture some of his favorites on film while they were still in good form. Only the Strong Survive features knockout performances from such R&B legends as Wilson Pickett, Jerry Butler, the Chi-Lights, Carla Thomas, Mary Wilson, Ann Peebles, and many more, as well as interviews in which the artists discuss the ups and downs of their lives in music. Only the Strong Survive also features performance footage of Memphis R&B pioneer Rufus Thomas, who had passed on at the age of 84, less than two months before the film was screened at the 2002 Sundance Film Festival. Buena Vista Home Video. DVD. $29.99; VHS. $19.99.

Open Range. (2003). Color. 138 mins. CC R. (Dubbed: French. Subtitled: Spanish). Video Released 2003. Directed by Kevin Costner. Featuring Robert Duvall, Michael Jeter, James Russo, Michael Gambon, Annette Bening. Robert Duvall stars as Boss Spearman, a rugged old-timer who free-grazes cattle. He and Charley Waite (Costner) have been partners for ten years. As the film opens in the 1880s, the pair and their employees — the beefy, rugged, likable Mose (Abraham Benrubi) and the impetuous Mexican teenager Buttons (Diego Luna) — are driving cattle across the West. Mose is attacked and thrown in jail during a visit to a town. The local cattle rancher Baxter (Michael Gambon) wants the free grazers off his land and warns Charley and Boss when they retrieve Mose that they have until the next day to be out of the area. Boss decides to fight back, especially after Baxter's men do harm to the foursome. Charley confesses his past as a killer during the Civil War and strikes up a tentative romance with Sue Barlow — the sister of the town doctor. The film's centerpiece is an extended gunfight between the duo (with some assistance from sympathetic townsfolk) and Baxter's hired gunmen. Buena Vista Home Video. Passion; I Only Have Eyes for You, 2 episodes on 1 cass. Horror Films. Television Series. 95 mins. (Buffy the Vampire Slayer Ser.: The Buffy and Angel Chronicles: Vol. 2). Video Released Jan. 2000. Sarah Michelle Gellar, Anthony Stewart Head. Two episodes. Passion: When Buffy wakes to find a drawing of her sleeping on her pillow, drawn by Angel the night before, Giles warns her that it is a ploy by Angel to wear her down before attacking. Meanwhile, Jenny is killed by Angel while trying to translate a spell that would restore his soul. Buffy saves Giles after he tries to kill Angel in retaliation for Jenny's death. Angel escapes, but Buffy is now resolute to kill him. I Only Have Eyes for You: The spirits of two lovers from the 1950's, James & Grace, are haunting the halls of Sunnydale High. James, a student, shot his teacher Grace & then killed himself at the school years before, but now students & faculty are uncontrollably re-enacting the fateful day. Giles, Buffy & the gang try to perform an exorcism at the school, but their efforts are thwarted. Later that night, Buffy returns after a strange voice beckoning her. Once there, she finds Angel & the two begin to play out the fight between the two lovers, with Buffy taking James' role & Angel defending himself as Grace did years before. In the heat of the moment, Buffy accidentally shoots Angel & then turns the gun on herself. Angel, still possessed by Grace's spirit, stops her & tells Buffy (James) that she never stopped loving him. As the two spirits float heavenward, Angel flees & Buffy, emotionally spent from the encounter, acknowledges Angel's unique role in helping the spirits find peace. Patriotism. (1966). B&W. 27 mins. (Criterion Collection: 433). (Japanese, Subtitled: English). Video Released Jun. 2008. Directed by Yukio Mishima. Playwright and novelist Yukio Mishima foreshadowed his own violent suicide with this ravishing short feature, his only foray into filmmaking, yet made with the expressiveness and confidence of a true cinema artist. All prints of Patriotism (Yûkoku), which depicts the seppuku of a naval officer, were destroyed after Mishima's death in 1970, though the negative was saved, and the film resurfaced thirty-five years later. New viewers will be stunned at the depth and clarity of Mishima's vision, as well as his graphic depictions of sex and death. The film is presented here with a choice of Japanese or English intertitles. Criterion Collection. DVD. (ISBN: 978-1-60465-041-9(9), UPC: 7 1551502982 7) $24.95.

Directed by George Marshall, Frank Loesser. "The Perils of Pauline," produced by Pathe' in 1914, is arguably the most famous of all silent-screen serials. Its star was Pearl White, a farmers daughter who, as a result of the film's success, became fondly known as the "Queen of the Serials." The title of her greatest triumph was re-used for this delightful fictionalized biography of the actress. The scenario charts White's rise to fame, from sweatshop worker to stock company performer to movie star, along with her love affair with a handsome actor. Video Yesteryear. VHS. (Order #: 525) $24.95.

Phantom from Space. (1943). Science Fiction. B&W. 75 mins. Ted Cooper, Rudolph Anders, Noreen Nash. Ominous clouds roll across the screen, followed by lightning, thunder, & the eeriest of music. What follows is a story that is "so strange in its implications that it defies ordinary classification." It's the unintentionally uproarious saga of an invisible being, from the outer reaches of the universe, whose spaceship has crash-landed on a California beach. Apparently, it's wearing a wetsuit & diving helmut, but is faceless & armless; you know exactly what the police will find (or, actually, won't find) when they check the scene for fingerprints. This "thing" causes quite an uproar, & no one has any idea what to do. Video Yesteryear. VHS. (Order #: 1763) $19.95.

Phantom of the Opera. (2004). Color. 141 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Joel Schumacher. Featuring Gerard Butler, Emmy Rossum, Simon Callow, Miranda Richardson, Patrick Wilson. One of the most popular stage musicals in the history of Broadway and London's West End makes its long-awaited arrival on the motion-picture screen in this lavish adaptation directed by Joel Schumacher. Christine (Emmy Rossum) is a beautiful and gifted young woman who longs to join the company of the Paris Opera House. During rehearsals for one of the opera's grand productions, a massive chandelier crashes to the floor, nearly crushing leading lady Carlotta (Minnie Driver). When several members of the company suggest this could be the work of the "Phantom of the Opera," a spectral presence said to haunt the building, Carlotta drops out of the show, and the fates permit Christine to step in as her replacement. Christine's performance is a triumph, and on opening night she becomes reacquainted with Raoul (Patrick Wilson), a former childhood friend who is now a wealthy and well-known nobleman. Christine soon finds herself smitten with the handsome Raoul, but the same evening she makes a startling discovery — the story of the Phantom is not just a legend. A brilliant but horribly disfigured composer (Gerard Butler) lives deep in the depths of the opera house, and taken with the beauty of Christine's voice, he abducts her and brings her to his lair, where he offers to help her perfect her talents, offering to write an opera especially for her. As the terrified Christine is comforted by Raoul, the two fall in love, but the phantom sees her affection for Raoul as a tremendous betrayal, and the jealous phantom nearly kills Christine as he nearly killed Carlotta. When the phantom emerges to present the opera's management with the piece he has written for Christine, the singer is asked to put her life on the line in an effort to capture the mad genius once and for all. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $29.95.

Directed by Michael Roemer. Harry Plotnik, a sad-sack Jewish gangster comes out of prison to find his numbers racket slipping away. Under pressure from well-meaning relatives, Harry makes an erratic effort to go straight, triggering a series of humiliations & small disasters. Unable to fit into either the criminal or straight worlds, Harry becomes uniquely & irresolutely heroic - a modest modern day Job fated to be the butt of an endless stream of small-time cosmic jokes. New Yorker Video. VHS. (ISBN: 978-1-56730-026-0(X), Order #: NYV00291, UPC: 717119002138) $29.95, Rental 350.00 16mm.

The Plot against Harry. (1969). Comedy. 81 mins. Video Released 1989. Directed by Michael Roemer. A sleeper of Rip van Winkle dimensions, Michael Roemer's subtly innovative ethnic comedy went over the heads of preview audiences in 1969, sat on a shelf for 20 years, then resurfaced in 1989 to triumphant festival screenings & rave reviews. The central character is Harry Plotnik, a sad-sack Jewish gangster who finds his numbers racket slipping away. Under pressure from well-meaning relatives, Harry makes an erratic effort to go straight, triggering a series of humiliations & small disasters. Rather than partitioning the film's humor into a series of self-enclosed gags, Roemer instead creates a constant & pervasive comic atmosphere, based on sharply observed details, slow build-ups, throw-aways, deadpan reactions, egg-on-face ironies, & a precise sense of anticlimax. Facets Multimedia, Inc. VHS. (Order #: S13576) $79.95.

Poison. (1991). Drama. 85 mins. Edith Meeks, Larry Maxwell, Susan Norman, Scott Renderer, James Lyons. Directed by Todd Haynes. An interwoven trilogy, using three distinct stylistic conventions to explore the writings of Jean Genet, arriving at a profound realization of poison in the human mind, body & soul: a prison drama reveals a homosexual's despair at being constantly confronted by forbidden passions; a 50's horror film portrays a scientist's search for the essence of sexuality, drawing a compelling parallel to the HIV crisis; & a tabloid mystery criticizes religious sentimentality as it reveals the circumstances surrounding the murder of a wife-beater by his own child, who then flew out the window toward heaven. Facets Multimedia, Inc. VHS. (Order #: S15839) $19.98; Laser. (Order #: LD72226) $34.95.

The Pornographers. Orig. Title: Jinruigaku nyumon. (1966). B&W. 127 mins. (Criterion Collection: Vol. 207). (Subtitled: English). Theatrical Release. Video Released 2003. Shoichi Ozawa, Sumiko Sakamoto, Masaomi Kondo. Directed by Shohei Imamura. Screenplay by Shohei Imamura. Subu makes pornographic films. He sees nothing wrong with it. They are an aid to a repressed society, and he uses the money to support his landlady, Haru, and her family. From time to time, Haru shares her bed with Subu, though she believes her dead husband, reincarnated as a carp, disapproves. Director Shohei Imamura has always delighted in the kinky exploits of lowlifes, and in this 1966 classic, he finds subversive humor in the bizarre dynamics of Haru, her Oedipal son, and her daughter, the true object of her pornographer-boyfriend's obsession. Imamura's comic treatment of such taboos as voyeurism and incest sparked controversy when the film was released, but The Pornographers has outlasted its critics, and now seems frankly ahead of its time. Public Media, Inc. (Home Vision). DVD. (ISBN: 978-0-7800-2666-7(7), UPC: 0-37429-17802-7) $29.95.

Predator 2. (1990). Color. 108 mins. CC R. (Dubbed: Spanish, French). Video Released 1990. Directed by Stephen Hopkins. Featuring Danny Glover, Gary Busey, Bill Paxton, Maria Conchita Alonso, Ruben Blades. This special effects-heavy science fiction sequel moves the action from the first film's Amazon forest to the urban jungle of L.A. Danny Glover stars as Lt. Mike Harrigan, an LAPD detective baffled by his latest case, the ritualistic slaughter of several drug dealers by a devastating killer who leaves no traces. As Harrigan and his partners, Danny Archuletta (Ruben Blades), Leona Cantrell (Maria Conchita Alonso), and Jerry Lambert (Bill Paxton), try to figure out who or what killed the criminals, FBI investigator Stephen Keyes (Gary Busey) attempts to warn the team away from investigating further. When two of his team are killed in a particularly grisly way, Harrigan uncovers the truth — their quarry is an alien creature that hunts humans for sport. Attracted to violence, its latest choice of prey is gun-toting Jamaican drug dealers. Keyes and his team know all about the nasty extraterrestrial and its bloody pastime because they've been studying it for ten years, and they've come up with a possible means of dispatching the beast. When that plan backfires, however, it comes down to Harrigan and an extremely irritated otherworldly foe, slugging it out in a rooftop confrontation. Twentieth Century Fox Entertainment. Primer. (2003). Color. 77 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2003. Directed by Shane Carruth. Featuring David Sulllivan, Anand Upadhyaya, Casey Gooden. Primer is a psychological sci-fi thriller about a group of four tech entrepreneurs. Toiling away in a garage, the quartet have successfully created error-checking systems for their clients. But their recent work seems to have created an unexpected and seemingly impossible side-effect. Suddenly, two members of the group realize they are in possession of a device that can double, or perhaps even quadruple, the space-time continuum of anything that enters it. What at first seems like a windfall of astronomical proportions eventually proves to be much more than they bargained for, as the duo attempt to manipulate time to their financial — and emotional — benefit. New Line Home Video. DVD. $27.95.

Featuring Anne Hathaway, Julie Andrews, Tom Poston, Raven Symone, Hector Elizondo. The Princess Diaries 2: Royal Engagement picks up where its predecessor left off — that is, with American teenager Mia Thermopolis (Anne Hathaway) reeling over the news that she is a princess within the royal family of Genovia, a little-known European nation with a population of barely 50,000. As promised, Mia, along with her best friend, Lily (Heather Matarazzo), travels to Genovia after their high-school graduation. The unlikely princess has hardly settled into the castle, let alone begun representing the country, when she learns that a larger title is approaching more rapidly than expected; it seems as though Mia will have to take over as queen. Suddenly, in addition to further schooling on the etiquette of royalty, Mia finds herself with a daunting prospect — according to Genovian law, all princesses must be married before they can be crowned. Private Dicks: Men Exposed. (2002). Color. 55 mins. CC NR. Video Released 2002. Men spend a lot of time thinking about their penises, and even thinking with their penises. But rarely do we hear men talking honestly about their penises-until now. Surveying young and old, gay and straight, large and small, virgin and porn star, from all walks of life, PRIVATE DICKS explores the naked truth about how men feel about their penises. The men, many of whom appear nude, offer personal revelations that are honest, humorous and often poignant as they frankly discuss puberty, power, impotence, circumcision, sexuality, myths and perceptions, growing old, and, of course, size. Interspersed with clips from vintage sex education films and humorous cartoons, PRIVATE DICKS provides a rare opportunity for both interviewees and audience to begin an honest conversation about masculinity, power, vulnerability, sex and love-all seen through the lens of a man's relationship to his penis. First Run/Icarus Films. VHS. $298.00.

Purgatory. (1999). Color. 95 mins. CC (YA). NR. Made-for-TV. Video Released 1999. Directed by Uli Edel. Featuring Randy Quaid, Sam Shepard, Brad Rowe, Donnie Wahlberg. In this fantasy set in the Old West, Blackjack Britton (Eric Roberts) is an outlaw on the run from police after a bank robbery. Britton and his gang wind up in a small town called Refuge, where things are rather unusual — outlaws are warmly welcomed and offered free food and lodging but warned not to swear, and none of the residents carry guns, including Sheriff Forrest (Sam Shepard). Britton and his gang notice that Sheriff Forrest bears a striking resemblance to the famous gunfighter Wild Bill Hickock, who died some years ago. Elsewhere in Refuge, Britton's gang meets dead ringers for such late, great outlaws as Doc Holliday (Randy Quaid), Billy the Kid (Donnie Wahlberg), and Jesse James (J.D. Souther). Britton learns that Refuge is actually Purgatory, where the gunfighters are stranded between Heaven and Hell, hoping to hoping to find a redemptive grace that will bring them salvation as they struggle not to backslide into final damnation. Soon Britton's gang becomes restless, and the men of Refuge may have to return to their guns if they are to protect the town. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $14.97.
